

IP Infinity Productions, Inc is a community based theatre company, located in the Bayview/Hunters Point District of San Francisco. Infinity is a hybrid of raw determination, aesthetic intensity, and creative articulation dedicated to the performing arts.

IP Infinity Productions, Inc was founded in 1995 by the efforts of a number of people who worked with local playwright, Mary L. Booker, on a number of her works in progress. However, it was under the leadership of Reverend Calvin Jones, Jr., assisted by Richard Warren, who spearheaded producing Ms. Booker's play, "A Time For Healing," under The Fellowship Urban Outreach Program, that Infinity was organized. Though the evolution of the ensemble it became a project of the Bayview Opera House Ruth Williams Memorial Theatre.

In a collaborative effort with the Bayview Opera House Ruth Williams Memorial Theatre all performing members of Infinity Productions participate in weekly ongoing acting workshop. These workshops are free and open to all who are truly interested in developing skills as a trained actor.

Dedicated To Excellence In The Arts

I seize this opportunity to appeal to the persons who see the need, and can conceive our ultimate goal, to build a thriving, self-sustaining performing arts program, committed to the preservation and advancement of the African American heritage and culture; I invite you to join us.

Infinity Productions needs your expertise and support. We are constantly in search of experienced instructors in theatre, dance and music. We need you to take a role in developing these disciplines into independent departments who will produce students of the arts equipped with skills that will enable them to perform at the highest level in the performing arts world.

Also, we are looking technicians, set designers, actors and actresses of all ages who are interested in joining our performing ensemble.

If you are interested in any area stated above and would like to be involved in our venture, please contact us stating your area of interest.
